ITALIAN SPARKLING

EMILIA-ROMAGNA

This is the home of Lambrusco, a joyous sparkling made from red grapes grown on high trellised vines in four DOC zones in the Modena, and Reggio Emilia provinces. Most exported Lambrusco is sweet and amabile (medium sweet), and very few consumers abroad have tasted the wine in its authentic dry style.

PIEDMONT

Asti DOCG is Italy's flagship sparkling wine and one of the most unique sparkling wines in the world. Asti is made entirely from the Moscato grape and it's sweet. Another sparkling is entirely made from Pinot Noir or Italian called it Pinot Nero, is a refreshing change from much of the sparkling rosé found elsewhere.

SPANISH SPARKLING

PENEDES

It's the centre of production of a sparkling wine known as Cava. Cava is made in traditional method, fermented in bottle. But most Cavas use local spanish grapes, Macabeo, Xarel-lo, Parellada. As a result, they taste distinctly different from Champagne and California bubbles. Some of more expensive blends do contain Chardonnay.

AUSTRALIAN WHITE

NEW SOUTH WALES STATE

New South Wales makes 31 percent of Australia's wine. Hunter Valley Sémillon is typically produced dry with low alcohol levels often less than 10%. Producers will often ferment Sémillon in oak with additional barrel ageing to enhance the mouth-feel and texture.

The wines are characterised by buttery, honey nut flavours and an ability to age for several decades, often hitting their peak between 10–20 years.

	Rating	IDR '000
'10 Tyrell's Lost Block Semillon		591

SOUTH AUSTRALIA STATE

The Australian winemakers embrace technology to achieve wines that preserve the intense flavors of their grapes and are soft and pleasant to drink from an early age.

Australian wines epitomize user - friendliness. Australia most important state for wine production is South Australia, it makes about 50 percent of Australia's wine. Vineyards closer to Adelaide make wines that are considered among the country's finest, such as Barossa Valley.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA STATE

The Margaret River is the foremost Geographical Indication wine region in the South West Australia Zone. Overall the climate is similar to that of Bordeaux in a dry vintage.

Although the region produces just three percent of total Australian grape production, it produces over 20 percent of Australia's premium wine market.

	Rating	IDR '000

AUSTRIAN WHITE

KREMSTAL

Kremstal DAC was introduced in 2007 and stands for the vibrant and spicy Grüner Veltliner and for delicate, mineral-rich Riesling wines. Kremstal DAC wines are available either as in classic fresh medium-bodied styles or as rich, more intense Reserve wines.

	Rating	IDR '000

CHILEAN WHITE

CENTRAL VALLEY

Stylistically, Chile's wines generally lack the exuberant fruitiness of Californian and Australian wines, and yet they are not quite so subtle and understated as European wines.

Most of Chile's vineyards are in the Central Valley, which lies between the coastal range and the Andes. Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc do well here.

FRENCH WHITE

ALSACE

Alsace's wines are unique. The grape varieties that grow there, for the most part, don't grow elsewhere in France. It is situated in north eastern France, was formerly part of Germany.

Like German wines, they are predominantly white wines, unblended and usually without oaky flavor, also their grape varieties are the same as some of those used in Germany.

BORDEAUX

The region lies in the southern part of western France, on the Atlantic coast. The chardonnay grape might rule the world of white wines, but it's not a permitted variety in Bordeaux. Sauvignon Blanc and Semillon, typically blended together here and have adapted extremely well to the terroir. Most of the better dry white Bordeaux are crisp and lively when they are young but develop a honeyed, fuller-bodied richness with age.

BURGUNDY

Among white wines, white Burgundies are some of the finest dry white wines in the world - when you select them carefully. Not every year is a good vintage, fortunately the grapes grown in Burgundy are suited to cool climates.

Although Chardonnay is a nearly universal variety today, it reaches its height in Burgundy, where it makes complex, masterful wines that can age for decades. Another white variety is Aligote; its wines are clearly labelled "Bourgone Aligote".

GERMAN WHITE

MOSEL

The Mosel Valley has long been considered as one of the world's most beautiful river valleys. This region is proud of its Riesling wine. Some of the greatest Rieslings on Germany and in fact in the entire world come from the Mosel Valley.

The wines are traditionally low in alcohol, usually 8-10% abv, which gives lightness in the mouth. They are fresh, fruity medium wines, usually with high acidity and flinty. These wines are often at their best when young.

ITALIAN WHITE

FRIULI-VENEZIA GIULIA

The area is known predominantly for its white wines which are considered some of the best examples of Italian wine in that style.

The generally philosophy of Friuli winemakers (especially in regards to their white wines) is to emphasize the grapes' pure fruitiness and acidity without the masking affects of oak.

FRENCH ROSE

CHAMPAGNE

About 97 percent of all Champagne is white. That leaves only 3 percent for Rose Champagnes. Rose Champagnes come in all different hues of pink, from the palest salmon or onion-skin to the deepest rose.

They are always brut Champagnes, and are therefore always dry.

They get their color from a skin contact with Pinot Noir / Pinot Meunier during the first fermentation.

RHONE VALLEY

The Rhône is generally divided into two sub-regions with distinct vinicultural traditions, the Northern Rhône and the Southern Rhône. The northern sub-region produces red wines from the Syrah grape, sometimes blended with white wine grapes, and white wines from Marsanne, Roussane and Viognier grapes. The southern sub-region produces an array of red, white and rosé wines, often blends of several grapes such as Grenache, Syrah, Mourvèdre, Carignan and Cinsault.

FRENCH RED

BORDEAUX

Bordeaux's reputation as one of the greatest wine regions in the world revolves around the legendary red wines of Bordeaux - Grand Vins (great wines) made by historic chateau (wine estates) and capable of improving for many decades. Quantitatively, they are only a small part of the region's red wine production.

Middle level Bordeaux reds are ready to drink within 10-15 years of the harvest and other Bordeaux reds are enjoyable young, within 2-5 years of the vintage. Cabernet Sauvignon is the principal grape variety in Haut Medoc and Pessac Leognan. Merlot dominates the St.Emilion and Pomerol wines.

MEDOC CLASSIFICATION 1855

The Classification resulted from the 1855 Exposition Universelle de Paris, when Emperor Napoleon III requested a classification system for France's best Bordeaux wines which were to be on display for visitors from around the world.

Brokers from the wine industry ranked the wines according to a château's reputation and trading price, which at that time was directly related to quality. The 61 wines were ranked in importance from first to fifth growths (crus).

BURGUNDY

A wine region in Eastern France, stands shoulder-to-shoulder with Bordeaux as one of France's two greatest regions for dry, non-sparkling wines. Burgundy's terroir is particularly suited to the main red grape variety of the region, Pinot Noir.

In fact, nowhere else in the entire world does the very fickle, difficult Pinot Noir grape perform better than in Burgundy.

In the southern Burgundy, Beaujolais, the soil is very suitable for Gamay.

RHONE VALLEY

The rich wine region lies in south-eastern France, south of Beaujolais. The red wines are full, robust, and high in alcohol. The wines from the southern Rhone are distinctly different from those in the Northern Rhone.

Chateauneuf-du-pape is the king of the Southern Rhone. Almost all Chateauneuf-du-pape is a blended wine, as many as 13 grape varieties can be used, but Grenache, Mourvedre and Syrah predominate.

Syrah is the main red variety in the Northern Rhone.

TUSCANY

The most grown variety is the noble Sangiovese, which is often combined with small amounts of locally grown Cabernet Sauvignon, Canaiolo, Ciliegiolo and other grapes into wondrous blends such as the Brunello di Montalcino, and, of course, the signature Tuscan wines, the Chianti and Chianti Classico, which probably are the best known Italian wines in the world.

Many well known Super Tuscan wines are also based on a "Bordeaux-blend", especially Cabernet Sauvignon & Merlot.

Amarone della Valpolicella also simply known as Amarone is one of Italy's most full-bodied red wines, made from the same local grape varieties as Valpolicella (Corvina, Rondinella, and Molinara), but the ripe grapes are dried on mats for several months before fermentation, thus concentrating the sugar and flavors. CANADIAN DESSERT

Ice wine is a type of dessert wine produced from grapes that have been frozen while still on the vine. The sugars and other dissolved solids do not freeze, but the water does, allowing a more concentrated grape must to be pressed from the frozen grapes, resulting in a smaller amount of more concentrated, very sweet wine.

Unlike the grapes from which other dessert wines are made, such as Sauternes, ice wine grapes should not be affected by Botrytis cinerea or noble rot, at least not to any great degree. Canada and Germany are the world's largest producers of ice wines.

The Mosel Valley has long been considered as one of the world's most beautiful river valleys. This region is proud of its Riesling wine. Some of the greatest Rieslings on Germany and in fact in the entire world come from the Mosel Valley. The wines are traditionally low in alcohol, usually 8-10% abv, which gives lightness in the mouth.

Auslese is a German language wine term for a late harvest wine and is a riper category than Spätlese in the Prädikatswein category of the German wine classification.
